

Empowering federal government with actionable insight

Best-in-class services

Experian®, a global leader in information services, provides the federal government with unparalleled insight, empowering agencies to fulfill their missions. We help the federal government increase its efficacy by:

- Enabling agencies to offer e-services to their constituents by authenticating user identities
- Protecting the integrity of eligibility programs by authenticating identity and validating applicant data
- Minimizing the incidence of identity fraud prior to disbursement of entitlement funds
- Accurately assessing potential government vendors for business fiscal stability and legitimacy
- Assisting in investigation activities by providing information on more than 220 million consumers and 70 million businesses
- Supplying insight into and screening for potential agency personnel hires
- Optimizing collections efforts to maximize revenue while decreasing the accumulation of new debt
- Providing intelligence based on consumer and business market trends like economic impact, historical events, and peer group data
- Offering enhanced support features to help agencies cope with the resource-intensive requirements of addressing a data breach

What Experian delivers

The Experian Government Services team is dedicated to meeting your agency's distinctive needs. Our extensive data assets, unique analytical offerings and proven track record of adhering to the highest standards in data security and regulatory compliance help the federal government provide public services that are more effective and personal for the constituents who use them.
