

Experian Verify™ automated waterfall

Unlock the power of instant and permissioned income and employment verification

Manual income and employment verification is inefficient, costly and results in a poor experience for you and your customers. The key to a successful verification strategy is limiting the need for manual verification. This likely means implementing a multi-step approach. But to many lenders this introduces other complexities, such as managing multiple vendor relationships, building complex decisioning workflows, and managing different outputs and reports.

Simplify your experience with an automated waterfall

Experian Verify has solved this problem by effortlessly blending the power of instant and permissioned verification technology into one streamlined experience for you and your customers. If instant verification is unavailable, automatically waterfall to permissioned verification, whereby consumers can opt to connect to their payroll accounts, allowing you to verify their information directly from their employers' payroll service. It's simple, seamless and secure.
